Richmond's public school playgrounds are going to be enlarged and improved to cope with the growing and pressing needs of the school children.

"Dick" Hanna Chairman

J. O. Ford called the meeting to order. Organization quickly was effected by the election of R. W. Hanna as chairman. Hanna then appointed the following committee to work out plans and report back two weeks from last night: V. D. Brammer, C. E. Clark and W. T. Helms.

It is generally believed that the committee finally will solve the problem by a showing to the City Council which will result in that body incorporating the cost of the playground propositions in the city budget.

"There are other ways of raising the money, however," said a man who is interested in the schools last night. He did not tell the Record-Herald what that plan is.

MINING EXPERT WRITES MORE OF GOLD

"The days of gold," which have made California stand out on the pages of romance and in the realm of high finance with cameo-clearness, give promise of being re-enacted if one only may catch the fever which seems to have taken hold of the superintendent of the Contact Gold Mines in Sierra County.

This enterprise is being financed primarily by Richmond capital, and is officered by Richmond men.

George W. McPherson, with offices at 629 Macdonald avenue, is fiscal agent for the Contact, and has received the following interesting letter touching the mines at Allegheny, from Superintendent Cliff H. Weldon:

I wrote you a general letter a few days ago as you requested me to show the boys and prospective buyers when they called. In it I gave you a general history of this mining district, referring to the millions of dollars that have been taken out of the various mines near our own, among them, Sixteen-to-One, Plumbago, Twenty-one, the Mugwump, the North Star, the Rainbow, the El Dorado, the Tightner, the Bush Creek Mine, the Kate Hardy and others, all of which are within a radius of four miles of Contact Nos. 1 and 2, owned by our company, which is on the same ledge and adjacent to the south end of the now famous Kate Hardy mine.

I will now endeavor to give you a few more facts regarding the Contact ledge or vein our mines are located on: This Contact vein crops out over five miles to the south of us, and about seven miles north, on which are located the Gold King, which adjoins our Contact No. 1 on the south, while the great Kate Hardy mine's south end joins onto the north end of the Contact No. 2. We are now working 3000 feet from the south end of their tunnel on which they are now working a day and night shift of 75 men, on a 20-foot ore ledge, which is all good milling ore, in which many high grade chimneys or chutes are encountered, containing large amounts of gold ore running from $10,000 to $20,000 per ton.

I am now in 72 feet on our new tunnel and I am very much pleased to say that I got the car and rails installed today; it was a very difficult job to get that 600-pound car up the hill and into the tunnel, but we got her there and ready to work tomorrow. It makes the tunnel look like a real mine.

I am now most sincere in hopes that the weather will continue clear so we can get the lumber in and build the badly needed buildings, so I can put on more men and drive the tunnel ahead as fast as it is possible to with hand drills.

However, we will do the best we can until we get the power plant and machine drills to work with; I am very hopeful of getting into high grade ore every time we blast.

I am very confident our mine is a winner and I would bet my head on the results and certainty of getting into a chute of rich ore as they have been in for several months and are still taking out of the Kate Hardy. So you have my permission to tell any one or all of my Richmond friends who took interests because they had confidence in my judgment, that I am still as confident now as I was then of ultimately striking ore chimneys in this tunnel, which will be worth from $5000 to $20,000 a ton, such as they are now taking out of the great Kate Hardy.

I am very glad to hear that some of my friends who were already interested, are buying more interests; and that you and Mr. Hulanin ki have got many of the business men of Richmond to buy interests. I am very glad that Mr. Hulanisk is coming up in the early part of May and that my friend Whitney is coming up with him and going to work in the mine. He will find he will have some work to do when begins to handle a drill and hammer. As soon as we get the boarding house up, and other needed buildings, I hope to see many of my Richmond friends up here, all of whom will be welcome.

Well, I think I have written enough for this time, so will say good night and go to bed so that I can get that car to working tomorrow and push things ahead.

With kind regards to yourself and all inquiring friends, I am,

Yours truly,
CLIFF H. WELDON.

Don't Neglect Kidney Troubles!

Dropsy, Diabetes and Apoplexy Most Dreaded Diseases

Neglect of any derangements of the kidneys is dangerous in the extreme. Kidney trouble is Nature's warning against the approach of Bright's disease, diabetes, dropsy and apoplexy—all diseases that are eventually fatal in their effects. Read what Mr. A. Fillinger, R. F. D. No. 2, Wheeler, Ill., says:

"I was a great sufferer from kidney and liver derangements for several years. The pains in the back were almost more than I could endure, and the whole digestive system was upset. Though many medicines were tried, I never obtained permanent relief until I used Dr. A. W. Chase's K-L Pills. It is a pleasure to recommend so excellent a medicine."

You can buy Dr. A. W. Chase's remedies at all drug stores. To be sure of getting the genuine, see that portrait and signature of A. W. Chase, M.D., are on every box. This trade mark is your protection against substitutes and imitations. —Advertisement. 10

"Stranger Than Fiction" Pleases At T. & D. Theater

"Stranger Than Fiction" is truth indeed. Katherine MacDonald's latest attraction, "Stranger Than Fiction," shown at the Richmond T. & D. Theater, for the first time last night, proves it.

The beautiful Katherine MacDonald has found a story that ideally lends itself to her peculiar type, and at the same time is comprised of the elements that make for an all-round pleasing motion picture.

One of the most outstanding features of this picture is the wonderful airplane circus, which provides the "punch" for the climax. The like of the perilous air stunt accomplished in "Stranger Than Fiction" has never yet been duplicated on the screen and it probably never will be. A leap from a burning airplane in a parachute and a rescue from another plane is a feat enough in itself to leave the audience gasping for breath.

Wesley Barry is among the supporting cast in "Stranger Than Fiction," playing the part of a little street urchin, known as "Freckles." This is hardly a place to reveal how little Freckles meets the beautiful Diane Drexel, which part is played by Katherine MacDonald; but it is enough to say that upon being adopted by the society lady, and taken into her home, the little fellow falls head over heels in love with her. This leads to some clever scenes, which young Wesley handles in his peculiarly funny manner.

Others in the cast are David Winter, Wade Boetler, Jean Dumont, Harry O'Conner, Evelyn Burns and Tom McGuire. The film was directed by J. A. Barry and is released by the Associated First National Picture organization.

SYNOPSIS

FOREWORD.—Motoring through Arizona, a party of easterners, father and daughter and a male companion, stop to witness a cattle round up. The girl leaves the car and is attacked by a wild steer. A masterpiece of riding on the part of one of the cowboys saves her life.

CHAPTER I.—Clay Lindsay, range-rider on an Arizona ranch, announces his intention to visit the "biz town," New York.

CHAPTER II.—On the train Lindsay becomes interested in a young woman, Kitty Mason, on her way to New York to become a motion-picture actress. She is marked as fair prey by a fellow traveler, Jerry Durand, gang politician and ex-prize fighter. Perceiving his intention, Lindsay provokes a quarrel and throws Durand from the train.

CHAPTER III.—On his first day in New York Lindsay is splashed with water by a janitor. That individual the range-rider punishes summarily and leaves tied to a fire hydrant. A young woman who sees the occurrence invites Clay into her house and hides him from the police.

CHAPTER IV.—Clay's "rescuer" introduces herself as Beatrice Whitford. Lindsay meets her father, Colin Whitford, and is invited to visit them again. He meets Kitty Mason by accident. She has been disappointed in her stage aspirations, and to support herself is selling cigarettes in a cabaret. Clay visits her there.

Tha's what we ride the range for, so's not to lose 'em. We've traced a B-in-a-Box steer clear from Tucson to Denver, done it more'n onct or twice too. I notice you got a big bunch of manpunchers in uniform here. Ain't it their business to rustle up strays?"

"The police," said the postmaster, amused. "That is part of their business. We'll pass the buck to them, anyhow."

After some delay and repeated explanations of who he was, the postmaster got at the other end of the wire his friend the commissioner. Their conversation was brief. When the postmaster hung up he rang for a stenographer and dictated a letter of introduction. This he handed to Johnnie, with explicit instructions.

"Go to police headquarters, Center street, and take this note to Capt. Luke Byrne. He'll see that the matter is investigated for you. Do you know the way to police headquarters?"

"I reckon I can find it. Is it fur?" The man from Arizona looked down at the high-heeled boots in which his tortured feet had clumped over the pavements of the metropolis all morning.

"I'll send you in a taxi." The postmaster was thinking that this babe in the woods of civilization never would be able to find his way alone.

As the driver swept the car in and out among the traffic of the narrow streets Johnnie clung to the top of the door fearfully. Every moment he expected a smash. His heart was in his throat. The hurricane deck of a broncho had no terrors for him, but this wild charge through the humming trenches shook his nerve.

"I come mighty nigh askin' you would you just as lief drive slower," he said with a grin to the chauffeur as he descended to the safety of one sidewalk. "I ain't awful hardy, an' I sure was plumb scared."

A sergeant took Johnnie in tow and delivered him at length to the office waiting-room of Captain Anderson, head of the bureau of missing persons. The Runt, surveying the numbers in the waiting-room and those passing in and out, was ready to revise his opinion about the possible difficulty of the job. He judged that half the population of New York must be missing.

After a time the captain's secretary notified Johnny that it was his turn. As soon as he was admitted the puncher began his little piece without waiting for any preliminaries.

"Say, captain, I want you to find my friend Clay Lindsay. He— "

"Just a moment," interrupted the captain. "Who are you? Don't think I got your name."

Johnnie remembered the note of introduction and his name at the same time. He gave both to the big man who spent his busy days and often parts of the nights looking for the lost, strayed, and stolen among New York's millions.

The captain's eyes swept over the note. "Sit down, Mr. Green, and let's get at your trouble. This note says that you're looking for a man named Clay Lindsay who came to New York several months ago. Have you or has anybody else heard from him in that time?"

"We got a letter right after he got here. He ain't writ since."

"Perhaps he's dead. We'd better look up the morgue records."

"Morgue!" The Runt grew excited instantly. "That place where you keep folks that get drowned or burned off? Say, captain, I'm here to tell you Clay was the livest man in Arizona, which is the same as sayin' anywhere. Cowpunchers don't take naturally to morgues. No, sir, Clay ain't in no morgue. Like as not he's heap fill this yere morgue if any cross tried their rough stuff on him. Don't get me wrong, Cap. Clay is the squarest he-man ever God made. All I'm sayin' is—"

The captain interrupted. He asked short, incisive questions and got busy. Presently he reached for a 'phone, got in touch with a sergeant at the police desk in the upper corridor, and sent an attendant with Johnnie to the police department.

The Irish sympathies of the sergeant were aroused by the naive honesty of the little man. He sent for another sergeant, had card records brought, consulted a couple of patrolmen, and then turned to Johnnie.

"We've met your friend all right," he said with a grin. "He's wan heluva lad. Fits the description to a T. There can't be but one like him here." And he went on to tell the story of the adventure of the janitor and the hose.

The washed-out eyes of the puncher lit up. "That's him. That's sure him. Tell me where he's at?"

"We don't know. We can show you the place where he tied the janitor, but that's the best we can do." The captain hesitated. "If you find him, give him a straight tip from me. Tell him to buy a ticket for Arizona and take the train for home. This town is no healthy place for him. Your friend has made an enemy—a powerful one. He'll understand if you tell him."

"Who is this here enemy?"

"Never mind. He hit up too fast a pace."

"You can't tell me a thing against Clay—not a thing," protested Johnnie hotly. "He'll sure do to take along, Clay will. There can't any guy knock him to me, if he does wear a uniform."

"I'm not saying a thing against him," replied the officer impatiently. "I'm giving him a friendly tip to beat it, if you see him. Now I'm going to send you uptown with a plain-clothes man. He'll show you where your friend made his New York debut. That's all we can do for you."

An hour later the little cowpuncher was gazing wistfully at the hitching-post. His face was twisted pathetically to a question mark. It was as though he thought he could conjure from the post the secret of Clay's disappearance. Where had he gone from here? And where was he now?

In the course of the next two days the Runt came back to that post many times as the starting-point for weary, high-heeled tramps through streets within a circuit of a mile. He could not have explained why he did so. Perhaps it was because this was the only spot in the city that held for him any tangible relationship to Clay. Some one claimed to have seen him vanish into one of these houses. Perhaps he might come back again. It was a very tenuous hope, but it was the only one Johnnie had. He clumped over the pavements till his feet ached in protest.

His patience was rewarded. On the second day, while he was gazing blankly at the post a groom brought two horses to the curb in front of the house opposite. One of the horses had a real cowboy's saddle. Johnnie's eyes gleamed. This was like a breath of homest-to-God Arizona. The door opened, and out of it came a man and a slim young woman. Both of them were dressed for riding, she in the latest togs of the town, he in a well-cut sack suit and high tan boots.

Johnnie threw up his hat and gave a yell. "You blamed old horn-toad! Might 'a' knowed you was all right! Might 'a' knowed you wouldn't bite off more'n you could chew! Oh, you Arizona!"

Clay gave one surprised look—and met him in the middle of the street. The little cowpuncher did a war dance of joy while he clung to his friend's hand. Tears brimmed into his faded eyes.

"Hi yi yi! Doggone yore old hide, if it ain't you big as coffee, Clay. Thinks

"Hi Yi Yi! Doggone Yore Old Hide, If It Ain't You Big as Coffee, Clay!"

I to myself, who is that pilgrim? And, by gum, it's old h—l-a-mile jes' a-hittin' his heels. Where you been at, you old skeezicks?"

"How are you, Johnnie? And what are you doin' here?"

"You didn't answer my letters, so I come to see if you was all right."

"You old scalawag. You came to paint the town red."

KIDNEY AND BLADDER TROUBLE RELIEVED
I had Kidney and Bladder Trouble for years. I had to get up at night to urinate, and each time pained me awfully. I treated with various doctors and medicine and was in a very discouraging condition. A friend of mine, who was benefited for his weakness by taking the Herbs prepared by the Kong Wah Herb Specialists, urged me to try them. After taking them for two months, I was entirely well.

Stomach As Heavy As Lead

March 16, 1922.
I suffered from dysentery and difficult breathing, my bowels moving constantly with bloody discharges. I also had burning indigestion and my stomach felt as though there was a piece of lead in it.
Failing to get relief elsewhere, I took the herbs of the FONG WAN HERB CO. for two weeks. My former complaints have left me entirely and I am now enjoying good health.

Suffered Unnecessarily
Oakland, Feb. 3, 1922.
At intervals I suffered severe pleurisy pains which began in the right side of my chest and ran around under my arm into my shoulder blade. It was both painful and difficult to raise my arm. I had taken various sorts of treatment for the trouble, but had found no relief.
Now, after seven weeks of the FONG WAN HERBS, the pain in my chest is entirely gone and I feel quite well. I bought the herbs in packages and cooked them at home.

Frank Mayo Star With Big Support At the Macdonald

It was a sign of care and attention to detail when Universal secured three former stars to support one of its stars in a photoplay. Such is the situation in "Tracked to Earth," a Universal Special attraction coming to the Macdonald Theater today.

Frank Mayo is the star of the production, which is based on a Saturday Evening Post story by William J. Neidig. William Worthington, the director of Mayo's recent "Dr. Jim," is responsible for the direction.

Virginia Valli, the leading woman, who starred in musical comedies and was a Ziegfeld Follies beauty in her career before entering motion pictures. She has an old type of beauty, and her acting and the way she photographed in "Tracked to Earth," so pleased Universal executives that she was immediately engaged for the filming of "The Storm," a Universal super-production starring House Peters.

Buck Connors used to be known as one of the champion horse riders of the world and one of the best known cowboys that ever rode in Western roles. He was starred in tion pictures for a long period.

Harold Goodwin made such a good actor himself in two or three years, principally in Universal pictures, that he was signed to star by Fox. Universal secured him for this production just as it secured Miss Valli and Buck Connors—because "Tracked to Earth" was going to be made on a careful scale that would make it wort any star's time to be "just a member of the cast."

Feel Old?

Overwork, worry, anxiety or sorrow undermines strength and health. These causes contribute to kidney trouble, and weak or diseased kidneys make one feel old in middle age.

Foley Kidney Pills

help weak, overworked or diseased kidneys and bladder so that the system is free from waste and poisonous matter that causes one to feel old, tired, languid. They banish backache, rheumatic pains, sore muscles, stiff joints.

Mrs. J. D. Miller, Syracuse, N. Y., writes: "For many years I suffered with kidney trouble and rheumatism. I had a severe backache and felt miserable and all played out. I got to a place where I had to do something. After taking two bottles of Foley Kidney Pills I can say my backache is gone, and where I used to lay awake at night with rheumatic pains I can now sleep in comfort and enjoy a good night's rest."

NERVOUS PROSTRATION IS MENACE TO AMERICANS

Strenuous Mode of Living Making this Disease Common

This may well be called the nervous age. Everywhere you find people suffering from some form of nervous exhaustion. Hospitals and sanitariums are overflowing with men and women seeking to win back health of body and mind. If you are a victim of the strenuous life, if you can't sleep, if you are on the verge of a nervous breakdown, read here what Mr. P. D. Shade, Schuyler, Pa., says:

"Twelve years ago this spring, I had a very severe attact of nerve trouble, and although I was treated by three different doctors, I got very little relief until I tried Dr. A. W. Chase's Tonic Pills. After using these pills a few weeks I could feel a big change in my condition, so continued this treatment for three months. I don't think I ever felt better in my life than I did after using Dr. A. W. Chase's Tonic Pills, and whenever I feel my nerves are getting run down, I use some of these pills. I don't think there is any other nerve medicine that will do what Dr. A. W. Chase's Tonic Pills will."

You can buy Dr. A. W. Chase's remedies at all drug stores. To be sure of getting the genuine, see that portrait and signature of A. W. Chase, M.D., are on each box. This trade mark is your protection against imitations and substitutes.—Advertisement.
